KGB aide seen leaving U.S.

Washington (UPI)—Dmitri I. Yakushkin, the head of the Soviet Union's KGB intelligence operation in the United States, is expected to leave Washington this month after a six-year assignment, The Washington Post reported yesterday.

The Post said Yakushkin, 58, the fifth-ranking official in the State Department's list of Soviet diplomatic officials in Washington, will return to the Soviet Union. American observers were anxious to learn of his successor. The Soviet Embassy had no comment when asked for confirmation.
